J. Burgess and W. K. Downing, alleging themselves to be partners, trading as B. J. Burgess & Co., to John Kehoe, trustee, to secure the payment of $9,558.68 to Alfred Lister and Edwin Lister, partners, doing business in New York city, under the firm name of Lister Bros., which sum is evidenced by the three notes of Burgess & Co. to Lister Bros., viz: one of January 4, 1882, for $2,209.68, at 60 days, with interest; one of December 22, 1881, for $3,663.50, at four months, with interest; and one of December 22, 1881, for $3,685.50, at eight months, with interest.

Important Advance in Telegraphy.

It has remained for Albert L. Parcell, a skilled mechanic and talented inventor, to produce a mechanism by which the barriers to rapid and cheap telegraphy are broken down, and which, by simple applications of known principles, promises to entirely revolutionize the telegraphy of the world. His system is called "Harmonic Automatic Telegraphy," and differs from that in use by the Rapid Telegraph Company in two important points: The first is an improved and abbreviated construction of the alphabet, in which position is used to the great saving of characters and consequent saving of time in preparing the copy in the perforator. The second is the employment of a system of sympathetic resonance by which, with the use of a single wire and unskilled operatives, the same amount of work which is now done by ten wires and skilled labor can be accomplished. Thus, for the first time in the history of telegraphy, the Morse alphabet and system are done away with, as are also the translating and transcribing by receivers.

Instead of requiring the ordinary handling and delay, the message, be it long or short, is rapidly prepared in a perforating machine fed into the transmitter, and is instantly reproduced in clear Roman letters on sheets of paper, ready to be sent by messenger to the party addressed. The actual number of words sent on an average by the American Rapid is from 600 to 700 per minute, while the low computations, made from results obtained from an instrument only partially completed, show a speed by the new method of 5000 words per minute. A great advantage, too, is that, being sent over a single wire, the matter comes consecutively, and is therefore free from liability to error, as is often the case where several wires are used for the sending of a single dispatch. For press work the new method will prove of inestimable value, as by the use of this device a speech of 2000 words, occupying about one column of the Herald, can be perforated, sent over the wire, and given to a messenger at the other end of the line for delivery and all ready for the type-setter in three and a half minutes. Of course, in order to attain this speed the copy is originally cut up into "takes" and distributed to several boys or girls, who transcribe the matter by means of the perforating machines, after which the several pieces are pasted together in one continuous strip. The strip runs through the instrument at great speed; and it will thus be seen that the celerity with which a dispatch is transmitted depends principally upon the number of perforators employed. It will thus be understood that, from beginning to end, the system demands only unskilled labor, by reason of the high degree of automatic perfection attained, and herein lies the great secret of cheapness. The speed is another valuable consideration, and when both elements are combined the result seems to be indeed, the long-sought desideratum.

The above brief outline of the development of Professor Parcell's system was gathered from a report presented recently by Robert Spice, B. S., Professor of Analytical Chemistry and Physics of the Collegiate and Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., at a special meeting of the stockholders of the Merchants' Union Telegraph Machine Company, in the company's offices in Mason Building. Among those present were a number of well-known capitalists of this city, New York and Chicago, besides gentlemen representing the principal telegraph companies of the country, whose interest in the new departure is openly manifest. It was apparent that the principles underlying the new system, and the methods for obtaining similar results at the ordinary rate of speed, were familiar to the latter gentlemen, whose admiration for the skill which produced the desired mechanical combinations, in which lay the grand success of the achievement, was freely expressed.—Boston Herald.

Disense is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations without. Hence, to cure the disease the cause must be removed, and in no other way can a cure ever be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just this principle. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon these great organs, both as a food and restorer, and by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system. For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; for the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of impostors, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good. For Diabetes, ask for WARNER'S SAFE DIABETES CURE. For sale by all dealers.
